The Universe: Size, Shape, and Fate Tom Murphy 9th January 2006 1 The Scale of the Universe Our universe extends staggeringly far beyond our own earthly environment Trying to grasp the size in any meaningful way is bound to make your brain hurt We can make analogies to at least understand a few of

1 Must the universe have a cause? - Common Sense Atheism

Must the universe have a cause? 5 Most proponents of cosmological arguments insist that the universe has not merely a cause but a first cause: something which is not caused by anything else Now the first two premises of the basic argument, 1 Anything that exists has a cause of its existence

2 Nothing can be the cause of its own existence

Chapter 1: Our Place in the Universe farther away, we see light that has taken a longer time to reach us • Can we see the entire universe? • No - age limits the size of the observable universe For a 14 billion year old universe, our observable universe is 14 billion light-years in radius

Lecture 16 : Cosmological Models I

If space has positive curvature, there is enough mass to stop the expansion of the universe The universe in this case is not infinite, but it has no end (just as the area on the surface of a sphere is not infinite but there is no point on the sphere that could be called the "end") The expansion will eventually stop and turn into a contraction
